

PROJECT WIN - ILFORD

Posted on April 10, 2019

Having regard to the two previous pre-application responses from the London Borough of Redbridge that were somewhat inconsistent, Fauji Properties enlisted our help to provide professional planning advice on this major residential development in east London.

The client sought to achieve planning permission for a new residential development on-site the former Newbury Park Synagogue and the former Lawn Tennis Club. We put forward a strong planning argument for the loss of the synagogue on site, and provided evidence that the tennis courts were last used in 2007, therefore remaining derelict for a decade.

The Planning Committee members unanimously approved the development at last nights meeting, recognising the high quality of the scheme and the benefits of meeting housing needs in the borough. If you need assistance with a large residential development, call today on 02079934539.
